Travel Tips

When you check in to your hotel, don't be afraid to ask for an upgrade. They have a lot of flexibility, and it can't hurt to ask.

Lunchtime is the best time to visit historical sites. The sites empty out and you'll have fewer crowds to fight.

HAWAII

Hawaii is known for its beautiful beaches—some of them with unusual colors. Many beaches are filled with white sand, but other Hawaiian shores are covered with green, red, pink, and even black sand.

Eight islands, each with its own unique personality. Bathed in sunshine, surrounded by the sea, and infused with a legendary spirit, known throughout the world as aloha – which breathes life into all who embrace it.

Whether you like hiking, biking, kayaking, sailing, swimming, or just sitting on the beach, Hawaii is the state for you. Near the water, you can relax as palm trees blow in the island breeze. Travel toward the center of the big island and you can hike through dense tropical rain forests and experience stunning waterfalls. Don't forget to dive in the waters and snorkel near Hawaii's coral reefs.

Hawaii Things To Do

- Delight in the magic of fire dancers, learn to hula, embrace the beat of the pahu drums at a sunset luau.
- Visit one of the heritage sites, like Pearl Harbor or Iolani Palace, the only royal palace on American soil to learn about not only the island history, but all of the U.S.
- Witness the grandeur of an active volcano on Hawaii Island, with a hike along dormant sites or a water ride to see fresh flowing lava.
- Stop and admire the waterfalls or stop for a photo of the island beauty on the scenic drive to Hana.
