GIFTS FOR

GLOBETROTTERS

1. Wilson Electronics' Sleek 4G-V helps improve one of land travel's most maddening experiences: dropped cellphone calls. This universal cell signal booster can significantly improve voice service and data transfer speeds. Plug the device into your car, a wall socket at your hotel, or a portable battery pack and bring it with you into the great outdoors. Then slip your phone in the cradle and boost your service by two to three bars.
2. Keep children entertained on the road (and their sticky fingers off your gadgets) with Fuhu's nabi, a mini Android tablet with hundreds of fun and educational programs. It comes in a funky silicon case that withstands drops and tumbles. Fire it up and your children will disappear into a world of games, movies, art projects, music, and more. They can read books, take photos, color, or do puzzles, and then connect to Wi-Fi and launch music videos and shows, from "Sesame Street" to "Imagination Movers." It is a full-function device in a kid-size package.
3. You cannot stay connected if your devices' batteries die en route. Keep them charged by traveling with a backpack, messenger bag, or briefcase from Powerbag. Each has a lightweight, built-in charging station that lets you charge up to four devices at once. You can juice up your cellphone, tablet, e-reader, and GPS, for instance, while dashing through the airport or flying home.
